

Tara twitters along

THIS Twitter thing seems to be more virulent than a sneezing pig in Mexico.

The latest to come down with 'twitteritis' is glamazon author Tara Moss who was in town last week for a series of photo shoots.

The leggy blonde was spotted in her swimwear draped over an Aston Martin and then snapped shopping and dining in Main Beach.

The shoot was part of a series of promotional photos for her role as an ambassador for Niecon's Oracle building at Broadbeach.

No sooner had the Gold Coast photo shoot finished than Tara had uploaded some of her behind-the-scenes pictures to her Twitter website complete with running commentary.

She also managed to make the day of radio birdman Richard Fowler when she strolled down Tedder Avenue.

He quickly introduced her to his parents who are holidaying from 'Nu Zulland' and who were suitably impressed with their son's celebrity friend.